My Dear Friends

We are at present engaged in preparation for the voyage of my wife and family to England. The particular ship is not yet decided upon - but three are daily expected from India and as soon as either of these comes into the Bay, we shall make the necessary arrangements. We have been here a fortnight and busy all the time with the outfit. The expense has been borne by our friend Oswel and he has fitted them all out in a way rather too splendid for a poor missionary's family but all has been given with so much good will it was impossible to refuse. He goes by the present steamer the "Harbinger" which will sail tomorrow at twelve A.M. He will if well receive them on their arrival in England and we shall write by next steamer stating the name of the vessel by which they sail. I have told you our plans already, but we find it difficult to arrange as to where they will stay in England because we don't know how much the Directors' will allow for their maintenance. I think England must be chosen for their first year, & Essex is the county with which I am best acquainted, but I am puzzled to know how [0003]

much per annum is requisite for plain living and schooling Would it be troubling you too much to send a statement of how much would be necessary for three months say, or until M^{rs} L. became acquainted with the modes of living, schooling &c. I am not aware whether M^{rs} Pyne still receives children as boarders. Perhaps if you left a note on the subject at the mission House M^{rs} L. would be enabled to act on the inform-ation. The children have endured so much heat of late, they will require the constant attentions of their mother. If your circum-stances had been the same as they formerly were, I should have felt no hesitation in telling my wife to go to your house [0004]
till she had received the knowledge necessary for further arrangements.
Information & advice are now all I can expect and for these M^{rs} L. will be extremely obliged.

We feel very unwilling that Agnes should be left at Walthamstow school. We should like her to be with M^{rs} Pyne if she still keeps a school. They will require all of them to choose new fathers & mothers in England. I fear they will forget us. At all events we can do no more for them than pray for them. The Directors must pay for their education The want of knowledge of how much they will be willing to give makes me close this in uncertainty.

Affectionately yours

David Livingstone
