

Letter to Robert Cooke, 22 April 1865

Livingstone, David, 1813-1873

Published by Livingstone Online (livingstoneonline.org)

[0001]

22 April 1865

Man Alive - that terrible 600!! pages
and I have been toiling like a galley
slave to bring it up to 450 and all the while fearing to think of my men & steamer
waiting for me at Bombay &
one of them dead

[0002]

I have spread it
so evenly over the whole I don't see
at present what I can leave out
save the "conclusion"
and "appendix"
I put in a great many parts with great care &
thought only to lengthen it, but we shall see what can be done. I shall

[0003]

write to Oswell today about it. Is it absolutely necessary to curtail more than what I have mentioned. The "Conclusion" gives a summary of results and the book would be the better of it

I shall go up to town about Tuesday next, and will see you about this which has struck
"me all of a heap"

[0004]

Till then believe me
My Dear Cooke
Yours ever
David Livingstone
Speke has 650 pages
or 612 to end of his narrative. might not Milton be a little more sparing with his Mss

Some of the drawings are Wallers & some Mellers. I shall tell you which is which Have you a receipt for Baines drawings