

Letter to Robert Moffat 1, 13 August 1845

Livingstone, David, 1813-1873

Published by Livingstone Online (livingstoneonline.org)

[0001]

Mabotsa 13 Aug 1845

My Dear Father

The bearer of this to Moiloe is a Mokwain sent by Khake to announce the death of Bube, which took place a few days ago. As you may not hear a correct version of the circumstances which preceded that even, I may mention that it was occasioned by an explosion of gunpowder. The people had been out hunting elephants, and having killed none thought the reason must have been in their ammunition not being charned. The principal men were therefore requested to try the same medicines they employ in charming their spears. All the powder in the town was collected on a kaross & the three principal men with medicine burning (roots, I suppose) came close, and pointing the stuff to the combustible material uttered a sort of whistling incantation. The explosion burned Bube nearly all over. His body was nama hela. The others suffered chiefly in the limbs & face. From their description of the quantity of powder, it seems to have been about 10 or 12 (lbs.) in amount. They sent immediately to Mabotsa for medicine, but I was gone to Sechele's. Having followed me thither I gave them a note to Mary, and the poor fellows trudged all the way back again. But Bube was no more before the medicine arrived. The people don't wish it to be known in what way the fire was communicated to the powder. They say there was no fire near, and as some of the powder was procured from Sechele they may believe it to have been bewitched. But the above account I received from some Bamaleti who were there at the time the accident happened, and who can have no motive for falsifying it.

[0002]

In my last by Paulo I informed you of our determination to leave Mabotsa as soon as possible I took our trees & planted them as the first step bought sufficient ground for three large gardens for a gun, some ammunition & beads. Sechele said he never expected that we should buy it but the whole of the plot being cultivated I could not request him to remove his people from their gardens without remuneration. He was highly pleased with the price. In the event of removal it is stipulated that the missionaries are to receive an equal amount of garden ground for nothing. I intend to build a good large house, whether the station be permanent or not, we shall have the pleasure of it while there. Mary says this is not an inch too large for us. I got next week to begin & [0003]

if I am no longer with it that I was with this, it will be fit for residence in December or January I should have left this week, but did not like to leave my dear rib to encounter M^r (E) alone. I left a note for M^r (E) when I went last time. Mary had just delivered it when I arrived & he had not troubled her. The note was to the effect "that he M^rE was to set his mind completely at rest respecting my leaving Mabotsa; he might consider the whole establishment as entirely in his hands" – And in order to prevent him conceiving I did this now in order to impede his Colonial journey, I stated that I did it simply to relieve his mind from the great anxiety he seemed to feel for my departure. I shall not alter my plan of preaching or keeping school while here, though I have renounced connection with the station. I likewise requested him to furnish his letter to the Directors in its original form only. I intend making use of my notes of it in that form & no other.

I greatly long to hear what you have thought of our correspondence. I did not wish to keep up the quarrel, but did not see the smallest probability of any amicable arrangement being come to by our meeting alone. I do not expect it by our meeting at all, but the gross perversions he has penned of what I said made me afraid again to come into

[0004]

interview with him the very first "charge" is false I never charged him with putting out a member from revenge. And all the others are culled out of the "interview" Now when I saw by the written charges that he had shifted the ground of his attack entirely I believe unless I had a witness to attest what might pass he might get something more against me M^r Edwards has not put a single point against me exactly as it happened. Now I had no witness here. I should have been very glad of an interview had I only had one witness. In what I wrote I tried to be frank & plain. I believe as I told you before when he got the assurance that I should leave he gained the point he wished from the first. Had Ashton not been as he has been the second conjecture I made would I have no doubt before this been verified. My going to Sechele is however against the realization of their hopes. You will have seen by his note which I sent by Boe that had he known of my intention to have another station he would have waived all this "row" he would not have cried & groaned before you not he had he only known that the "nonentity" would probably withdraw himself from the immediate vicinity of his supreme importance Pilanie seems to think him as much a nonentity as I am for in his recent visit

[0005]

Pilanie went out of his way But let it be known that he thinks him "a child of Mosielele" Pilanie said in his last visit to Mosielele, Edwards O'mpehile from beha; ñuana oa Mosielele hela eo. M^r (E) gave him a present when here. I gave him nothing – If he of importance is so much esteemed, what must I be?
 I think I did not tell you of the grand conference of Kings once projected to take place at Motito.
 Sebegoe Moiloe Mokhatla Mahura Andries &c &c &c were all to be there. Sebegoe was sent for [^][here] and urged to go. He thought Edwards wanted to betray him I was sent for & found the poor man did not know what to make of M^r (E)'s earnest entreaties M^r (E) thought I would assist him, I unfortunately expressed a doubt about the safety of Sebegoe putting himself into some of their hands and the famous congress was knocked on the head Sebegoe said he would go if I would take him but I did not feel inclined to interfere in kingly affairs. I don't remember that you were to [^][be] one of the party but Ross, Helmore &c certainly were. I think of it now as if it would have been very fine – I now hear the car passing the window, but we dont send letters by him.

[0006]

I have taken out two door frames, & two of the window frames I intend to take ^{also}. If this house is made a meeting house of it will not need the door frames and if he makes it a dwelling house he M^r (E) can make others more easily than I I dont think spite will allow him to do anything with it. If the inside walls were removed it would make a much better church than that at Motito Mebaloe goes with us. I said not a word to him but when digging up the trees he came & asked if I should help him by taking his. I replied that though I contemplated removal I had not thought of requesting him to move, I had wished to get another to go forward with me. To this he requested if I had any fault to find with him not to hide it and on my saying I had no fault but supposed as he had at great expense cleared out all the roots out of a fine garden, built a good house, &c I thought he would prefer to remain and another could go with me as assistant, he then entreated me to allow him to go forward & let the other of whom I spoke remain here & take his place. To even this I would have objected had M^r (E) not in his letter to the Directors quite discarded him

The chief made many objections and it was with great difficulty I could remove the impression that I had some cause of dissatisfaction either in him or people. Had any one stolen anything? He would give orders immediately that no one should from that day forward beg. If any one had vexed us Tell who it is & I shall punish him. Were we tired because the hearts of the Bakhatla were hard he explained that the hearts of all Bechuanas were so & he could observe they were just about to begin [^][to] give way to the preaching of the word. If any one wished to believe he was at liberty to change his customs &c. I tried to persuade him that I was not in the least dissatisfied with either him or his people. I promised to mend his gun for him where I was in future as if I were living with him, &c. but they all say "Loa re latla" I did not expect they would have shewn anything like the concern for our leaving which they do. It made me sorry for there are many of the younger men who seem to have affection for us and I suppose that affection might have been the means of leading them to the Saviour. I hope they may be converted although not by our instrumentality

[0007]

We have sown a great many garden seeds presented to us by M^rMethuen. The endive spin[a]ch, turnip, marigold wurzel & Knights early cabbage have come through the ground

[0008]
also so lettuces & carrots, so we shall have vegetables I have got three large Swedish turnips - intend them for seed. None of our onions have come up, the seed seems bad. I am very sorry the olive is dead but there is hope in the roots. There are wild olives at the bottom of our garden at Chonuane. The soil is black deposit with at some parts small portions of limestone intermixed. The banks of the stream are clayey the water is small but it will serve. The prospect of success in the great object of our mission is greater there than here. The Bakwains are not so degraded as we found the Bakhatla. The people there all profess to be highly pleased with the prospect of our residence among them. Sechele is building a wall round his town, it contains loopholes for shooting. The shape of the whole is a sort of triangle and the base line is longer than the wall in front of both gardens at Kuruman

From what I have said of our plans you will understand that we cannot come to a committee till February. I suppose the bretheren will make some allowances for our convenience as well as for (Mrs) (E)'s