My Dear M^r Murray

D^r Norton Shaw
will I suppose be a better hand for looking over the sheets than M^r Galton and he volunteered his aid most frankly
when I asked him

[0002]

about Galton's
qualifications.
He edits the journal of the R.G.S. I should like to get back the corrections I sent to the other man
if the slips are not destroyed which contained them .

I would like a couple of wood cuts
to shew the form of the fashion of

[0003]

dressing the hair in London , one is an imitation of the glory round
the virgin 's head .
If it can be done
I shall send you a little drawing .

I shall bring up two pieces of manuscript tomorrow
got your note yesterday. If you are not as

[0004]
much vexed with me as I was with the revises I'm mistaken. ou seem as if about to say
"a plague upon the fellow what does he mean". I don 't wonder at your getting crusty with me, but I can 't muster a single grumble at you in return .

D. Livingstone

I have answered the enclosed. It need not be preserved after you have read it
