Malango 8th August 1863

My Dear D<sup>r</sup> Kirk

I your welcome letters by the boat in the beginning of August instead of as you thought the middle . he ~~boat~~[canoe] with rum & sugar had still to come. You did all that a man could do in the circumstances, and I thank you for your services - suspecting that the silly Cape Governor had not sent the money which his predecessor Sir George Grey was always glad to do & indeed pressed me to make use of him in that and every other way, I could think of.
I gave D<sup>r</sup> Meller a bill for £150 to Colonel Nunes instead but you will be off by the time of his arrival and I fear I may not go to [0002]

Quillimane at all - You were quite right to get off by the earliest safe opportunity - that dying by inches - slow & sure poison which I saw in the crew of a Hamburg vessel was just what you describe in Saunders - Be sure & write when you get this & let me know how you are yourself - I feel naturally very anxious about you & the rest - sorry for poor Pearce - I shall send off his packet as soon as I can - We are thanks to the Highest all well except King who complains of pains in his limbs but works .

I have written a formal complaint against being subjected to the humiliation of having our Despatch subjected to missionary

[0003] and other gossip at the Cape before we knew its contents .
I suspect the Governor of the Cape as the guilty person and after telling how Adams came up and hailed the ship with "no more pay for you Pioneer chaps. I bring the letter as says it" and that D<sup>r</sup> Steere had expatiated on the different paragraphs before English & Portuguese [at Quillimaine] until you had felt compelled to the remark - "that it was not likely he could know the contents &c I add that notwithstanding the courteousness of its style my companions & self had been subjected to very unmerited humiliation - the Despatch was sent open to the Cape Governor and I suspect that he [0004] to gain a little popularity with high church folks had sent it to the bishop - I shall not call on the Governor though I go to the Cape and will take further public notice of the indignity if no apology is given. I don 't say a word to the bishop about it but will mention D<sup>r</sup> Steere's bad manners - Earl Russell says he will be glad to learn that any of the gentlemen of the Mission have profited by my [suggestions &] experience” &c &c. as they know this I shall use it as a text .

We liked the bishop well enough during his half day's stay with - he is the picture of Dillon of the Gorgon but marked with small pox - [...] cautious & no courage [...] seems not too old to [...] . He might as well [...] mentioned his decision about Morambala

[0005] as it was he let me see that he was mainly anxious to get in to coincide in his own views and he did not conceal his intention to bolt. He gave a hint about pickingsout of Pioneer but I shall take care that they be of the smallest and as for Lady Nyassa I would rather see her forming a second bar at Quillimane than that she should be a slaver or a Portuguese property which would be the equivalent .
We mean to take her to India when the hurricane season is over - wish we could get into the Webbe to wait for that.

Washington pointedly said "On no account take any money from private persons for her" and he

[0006] sanctioned several things additional which come to a good sum yet not a word is said about her .
I am not going to whine about it however -

In reference to the remark in the Despatch that the Gov<sup>t</sup> as yet possessed but scanty information about the resources of the country. I mention the ample materials you have sent or taken to the Gov<sup>t</sup> Museum at Kew and that there is no instance on record of valuable information being arranged without consulting Herbaria and authorities - & refer to Sir William Hooker

[0007]

as to whether the materials are not as ample for the illustration of the natural productions of the country as ever came out of a barbarous country & from a vessel in which nothing without incessant trouble could be preserved I write to Sir William at same time. I suspect some underling has suggested the remark .
Sir Roderick seems no longer our friend & he has a say in everything .
I only conjecture Sir Roderick's coldness from his ceasing to write .

[0008]

Rae gets on very fast in rebuilding Lady Nyassa his heart is in it. he worthy Laird of Limefield that we must be awful "clashers" out here. We surely must as the "clashers" got so far before reaching us on the spot. About a month ago we were talking just as we used to do about the Governor of Quillimame making so much of medical services to the army & auxiliary forces without ever thanking me for carrying him out of the thick of it. When it suddenly struck me that this might with additions be converted into a "clash" I never contemplated - if it does so become, you will know what to think of it .

[0009]

Meller left us on 17th July He is spoken of as consul for Madagascar and had applied for it. I don 't know if anyone is appointed to Zanzibar but it might be well for you to apply. In a few years you could retire with a competency & have done good service in the mean time .

Waller wished to retire rather than go to Marambala but the bishop gave in to taking the freed woman & children & he will go. It would have been such a mule to sit on a mountain without people to teach

[0010]

Proctor went down river very ill with liver & living in a low valley doing nothing .
They have it said brought a sickly lad with them who will soon die & give an excuse for bolting .
I have told Earl Russell that the use made of my previous advice not to fight or engage in native quarrels which bishop Mackenzie honestly mentions in his journal was to place all the blame of their subsequent fighting on my shoulders - the mountain Marambala to which they now go will subject them by its frequent clouds to chills & damps which

[0011] may be as prejudicial as the fevers in the valley they must not blame me for . Rowley is better .

We left to carry a boat past the Cataracts & improve the time between this & Dec<sup>r</sup> & had it up at Malango when in the water the Makalolo reported that it would require now to be carried - I called all hands to do this when five Shupanga men - I must give the names of the worthies. Kanyai Peoso Arimasau - Ropa & Maudzu (the slave) jumped in to shew how clever they were. he next thing I saw was the boat bottom upwards

[0012] away like a shot over the Cataracts! I am going to do a little on foot to keep the blood circulating .

My son Robert is said to be at Natal to join me - and I am sorry I cannot ask anyone save Captain Gardner to give him a passage and he won 't touch there - he would be useful in the L. Nyassa .
If you can drop a word about a passage to any likely skipper I shall be obliged. If he cannot come he must work his own way in Natal - with best wishes

I am ever yours

David Livingstone
