

Letter to Lady Elizabeth Eastlake

Livingstone, David, 1813-1873

Published by Livingstone Online (livingstoneonline.org)

[0001]

Hadley Green

30th May 1857

Lady Eastlake

I am both
ashamed and sorry
on account of having entirely
forgotten your
most kind invitation for Wednesday last

[0002]

I was employed
during the greater part of last week
in trying to get away from the bustle of London,
then the beginning
of this, was spent in removing from town to Hadley Green, and the privilege you had
most obligingly

[0003]

placed within my
reach, of meeting
the Bishop of London and the Editor of the Times,
never once flitted
across my mind
until M<sup>r</sup> Murray enquired the reason
of my absence
this morning.

If your Ladyships
says "Well he does

[0004]
not deserve my consideration, or notice" I cannot say a word in my defence. I only confess my fault
without any attempt to justify myself, and though
you may never forgive me I shall I shall never be able to blame anyone for it but myself. I am &c

David Livingstone